The Ludgrove School Foundation

A brief history

Ludgrove was founded by Arthur Dunn in North London in 1892. The School moved to its present site in Wokingham, Berkshire in 1937 where it prepares boys to go on to leading public schools. The principal aims of the School are for boys to grow and develop in a happy and caring environment, to explore and expand their potential and to learn to develop an awareness and concern for others around them.

Friendships are made for life and the full boarding experience encourages loyalty, team spirit, acceptance of others and the value of doing something to the best of one's ability.

By the time a boy leaves Ludgrove, it is hoped that he has acquired a confidence in his own ability, a sense of moral awareness and a set of values which will remain with him throughout life.

The Aims of the Foundation

The Ludgrove School Foundation is committed to broadening access to the school and supporting its future development. The foundation has also been set up to raise funds for bursaries, enabling families, regardless of circumstances, to give their sons a Ludgrove education and to offer all pupils a happy and rewarding school life through funding development projects.

Why launch the Foundation?

The school has benefited from the philanthropy of previous generations throughout its history. In its recent past, it has been able to fund investments in the school of over £2 million through prudent management. However, continuing investment in projects is needed to keep Ludgrove at the forefront of prep school education, whilst widening access to the school necessitates an appeal to the generosity of all generations.

We, the Trustees of the Foundation, are determined to maintain this position with your support over the coming years.

What can be achieved?

Developing the School

Ludgrove is a full boarding school which allows the boys to thrive and gives them all the qualities that allow them to flourish in the country's most selective public schools. The Foundation's help will allow the School to make the investments necessary to ensure Ludgrove remains as one of the country's leading prep schools while enhancing what makes it distinctive.

Broadening access

Ludgrove is a community where pupils are prepared for life in a diverse world. Through bursaries, the Foundation aims to draw pupils from a broader spectrum of society and make it possible for low and middle income families, both Old Ludgrovian and otherwise, to benefit from a Ludgrove education. It is this education that develops the values, independence, confidence and capabilities required to achieve great things.
